Gaze on-the love that fills her heart New charms hath lent to cheek and brow-

Gaze on -but hush! the pure lips part Perchance for thee she's pleading now

Hear me, thou who markest each feeling, Thou who knowest each passions sway At the sacred alter kneeling, For a being loved, I pray!

He is dearer than the mother Who hath been my life's fond guide-He is nearer than a brother, Though a brother's still my pride.

Oft, ere summer's blood had perish'd For the lover's weal I plead-Father! on the kasband cherish'd, Now thy choicest blessings shed!

In all peril and temptation Guard him with thy holy might: Mid the charms of power and station, Keep a noble spirit bright.

Bless him, father! he is starting Proudly for the goal of fame-Oh! may every year departing Add fresh laurels to his name!

Grant him Genius inspiration-Wisdom's eloquence divine-He is pledged unto a nation, Let him in her councils shine.

Be his guide-and for earth's sorrow, For the blight, the cloud, the thorn, So prepare him, that each morrow On a fearless heart may dawn.

Father! if the love I bear him Lend his path a brighter ray; If that love one pang can spare him, Aid me still to cheer his way.

Should his manhood's prime be shaded, Let him on this heart repos It will prove, when joys are feded, Desert spring, and forest rise.

Strengthen, guard and guide him ever! May he glory in love's chain, Till its links thy angel sever-Ne'er on earth to clasp again.
